

Week 6: Assignment 1 Oral PresentationsOVERVIEW

This session is designed to provide you with an opportunity to develop and deliver a short individual presentation which will be marked and contribute to your overall grade for the unit.

OBJECTIVES

By the end of this session, you will:

1. Have delivered an effective verbal presentation with visual aids, and
2. Have observed other students' presentations.

PART 1: Delivering a presentation

Each person will deliver their presentation on Assignment 1 to the class. Before you give your presentation, recall the main aspects of delivery that were emphasized in the lectures:

- Voice: audible, articulated, energy, intonation
- Language: appropriate language, any jargon explained
- Non-verbal communication: eye contact, body language (orientation, gestures, etc)

Students who are not presenting are required to be quite and respectful of students that are presenting. Presenting can be stressful for student so students need to be supportive and attentive. Students marks for their presentation can be adjusted if they are rude to other students.

Your tutor will fill out a feedback sheet for each individual, which will be given to you next week.

- All student need to be ready to present in week 6 unless they are explicitly selected to present the following week. If you are unable to present you will need documentation to support your case for special considerations.
